The Early Years

Saul Goodman was born Jimmy McGill in Cicero, Illinois. He grew up in a working-class family, and he had a difficult childhood. His father was an alcoholic, and his mother was often sick. Jimmy was often left to fend for himself, and he learned to be resourceful and streetwise.

As a young man, Jimmy got involved in petty crime. He ran a series of scams and cons, and he was eventually arrested for fraud. After serving a brief prison sentence, Jimmy decided to go straight. He enrolled in law school, and he graduated at the top of his class.

The Transformation

After law school, Jimmy started his own law firm. He specialized in criminal defense, and he quickly became known for his ability to get his clients out of trouble. But Jimmy was also known for his unorthodox methods. He was willing to bend the rules to win cases, and he was even willing to commit crimes.

As Jimmy's legal career progressed, he became increasingly disillusioned with the justice system. He saw that the system was rigged against the poor and the powerless, and he decided that he could do more good as a con artist than as a lawyer.

And so, Jimmy McGill became Saul Goodman. He changed his name, his appearance, and his entire personality. He became a master manipulator and a consummate con artist. And he used his skills to help people who had been wronged by the system.
