Biggar's journey begins in the Arctic, where he joins a team of scientists on a research expedition to the North Pole. As he travels across the frozen landscape, he encounters polar bears, walruses, and other Arctic wildlife. He also experiences the challenges of extreme cold, wind, and ice.

After reaching the North Pole, Biggar sets his sights on the South Pole. This journey is even more challenging, as he must cross the treacherous Drake Passage and navigate the icy waters of the Southern Ocean. Along the way, he encounters penguins, seals, and whales.

Finally, after months of travel, Biggar reaches the South Pole. He is the first person to have ever walked to both the North and South Poles. His journey is a testament to the human spirit and the power of determination.
