History and Origins

Padel traces its roots back to Mexico in the 1960s, where it was created as a casual backyard game. Over the years, it gained immense popularity in Spain and Argentina, eventually spreading to other parts of the world. Today, padel boasts a flourishing global community of enthusiasts and professional players.

Equipment and Court

To play padel, you'll need a padel racket, which is typically made of carbon fiber or fiberglass. The balls used in padel are slightly smaller and have less pressure than tennis balls, contributing to their distinctive bounce and trajectory.

The padel court measures 20 x 10 meters and is surrounded by walls on all four sides. These walls play a crucial role in the game, allowing players to hit the ball off them and create unpredictable angles and variations.
